New Teachers Are Appointed.

The appointment of staff for the Didsbury Schools has been completed and arrangements for the new term have been made.

Miss Norris, B.A., of Medicine Hat, has been appointed on the High School staff. She is a graduate of the University of Alberta and of the School of Education.

Mr. C. Flannigan, who has been teaching for several years in the south country, has been appointed to the public school staff. He is at present taking a course in general shop at summer school in Edmonton.

Mrs. Lynch-Staunton has been appointed on the regular staff of the public school.

The position of public school principal has been eliminated and Mr. A.W. Reiber will have charge of the whole school. Grade nine will be moved to the high school and will be in charge of Mr. E. Wiggins.

The other teachers on the staff will be Miss Aylesworth in the high school, and Misses Kathleen Collins, Bea Kendrick and Hattie Law in the public school.

Miss Canada's at Didsbury Fair.

Dressed in their attractive red, white and blue uniform consisting of red dresses trimmed with white maple leaves and the inscription "Miss Canada, with blue cap, did good work at the Fair last Wednesday selling war savings stamps.

The girls were Irene and Donna Durant, Mary Jean McFarquhar and Verna Devolin.

No Subsidy on Dairy Butter

Numerous enquiries have been received at the office of the provincial Dairy Commissioner regarding the payment of a six cent bonus on dairy butter.

The regulations as outlined by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board are very definite in stating that the six cent subsidy applies only to "butterfat purchased on a butterfat basis and used in the manufacture of creamery butter." To complete the forms for a refund of the subsidy, it is necessary to show the Federal Registered number and also the Provincial license number. This means that any small dairy manufacturing dairy butter without a creamery license cannot collect any subsidy.

United Church Notes

The minister will have charge of services at all points on the charge next Sunday, and will continue his sermons on the Galatians 5 and 22. "The fruit of the Spirit is Peace." It will do one good to devote part of your Sunday in the House of the Lord with Children of God.

Laying New Steel

The C.P.R. are laying new steel between Carstairs and Didsbury. The old steel is dated 1910 and was laid about 30 years ago.

One old timer says he remembers well because when they were laying the track here, the Dempsey-Johnson fight took place.

More Game Birds

Officials of the Fish and Game Dept. say that there is a greater abundance of game birds now in Alberta than for many years but that there will be fewer hunters on account of the gas and tire rationing.

Alf Studer, however, says that this will be his year and he will be able to get a few birds.

Claim Good Fishing

It was Russel Ady's and Charlie Mortimer's day out on Sunday and they had very good success on the Dog Pound where they landed 17 nice trout.

Tommy Johnson and Ed Ford took the Raven as their fishing grounds. From reports they did not quite get the limit.

Weddings.

KLEIN-BIESENTHAL

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Cuffling of Vancouver, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Friday, July 24th at 7 p.m. Margaret Eda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Biesenthal of Windthorst, Sask., and Harry Otto Klein of Didsbury, were united in marriage under a lovely arch of fern and roses by Rev. R. W. Schwermann, formerly of Edmonton.

The bride who was given in marriage by Mr. Cuffling, was dainty in an afternoon dress of sea blue crepe with white accessories and carrying a bouquet of pink rosebuds and white sweet peas.

The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Klein of Didsbury, the former a brother of the groom. Ord Seaman Delbert Smiley of Nelson, B.C., who is a nephew of the groom, also witnessed the ceremony.

Eight guests sat down at a prettily appointed table centered with a wedding cake and were served a delicious dinner. The happy couple left for a short honeymoon in Victoria and on their return will reside in Vancouver.

New Fireproof Glass

Floats Like Cork And Can Be Sawed With Ordinary Tools

Pittsburgh Corning Corp. reports it has started production of a new type opaque glass, composed of myriad tiny cells, that floats like cork and can be sawed or drilled with ordinary tools.

The product, known as foamglass, weighs only ten pounds for each cubic foot—one-fifteenth the weight of ordinary glass. It is odorless, fireproof and vermin proof and possesses insulating qualities the company said.

Its cellular structure gives the glass its buoyancy and insulating properties. It will not absorb water and it will remain afloat indefinitely.

The company, jointly owned by Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. and Corning Glass Works, has had the product under development since 1938 and recently started manufacturing it in a new plant in western Pennsylvania.

It is produced by firing ordinary glass which has been mixed with a small quantity of pure carbon. At proper temperature the glass softens and the carbon turns into a gas which then acts upon the molten glass in much the same manner as baking or yeast in making bread. Through exercise of controls, a rigid vitreous slab, in which cells are uniformly small and entirely sealed one from another, is obtained.

A Natural Road

Stefansson Says People Have Forgotten Value Of River Highways

Americans can stop worrying about the projected 1,500-mile highway to Alaska, because nature has provided another one, of which only 300 miles of road need to be constructed. So claims Arctic Explorer Vilhjalmur Stefansson in the July issue of Fortune. Most of his highway consists of the Yukon and Mackenzie Rivers. His 300-mile road would connect the two rivers. Says Stefansson: "In North America the Mackenzie River, second only to the Mississippi system, is the historic commercial highway of northwestern Canada. It begins to be navigable at the head of rail north of Edmonton and flows almost straight in the direction of Japan and China. The Yukon is the third longest river highway of the North American continent, (and) the Mackenzie, 300 miles from its delta, is only 300 miles from the head of navigation of the Yukon." Sternwheelers have long travelled both rivers, which (claims Stefansson) winter freezes into ice-paved roads of sledge-pulling tractors. During a three or four-week freeze-up in autumn and the breakup in the spring, the rivers are of course impassable to both ships and tractors. Stefansson adds: "A generation that tends to think lazily in terms of railroads, ships and trucks has almost forgotten the value of river highways."—Time.

Paid In Kind

How A Newspaper Man Advertised An Important Event

There was a merchant who refused to advertise in his local newspaper, saying, "Nobody reads it," but who constantly used handbills, which were passed around and placed in the automobiles on the streets. When the merchant's daughter got married, he went gleefully to the office of the newspaper with a long story about the wedding. The editor set up the type, printed it on 200 bills, sent a group of boys cut with instructions to place them in automobiles standing on the street. The merchant, who was subject to high blood pressure, is now thought to be convalescing in a hospital. Ole Bill in Dunville Chronicle.

SUN BATHING

A warning against too much sun bathing is given by Dr. Norman Wrong, in an article in Health Magazine, organ of the Health League of Canada. Dr. Wrong, demonstrator in dermatology, University of Toronto, discusses facts and fallacies about the skin.

The chief function of the skin is to protect and cover, but "Equally important, however, are its functions of heat regulation, of elimination of sweat and of acquainting us with our surroundings through its sensory nerves," he declares.

"The skin is admirably suited to resist harmful physical agents such as heat, cold, drying, wetting, abrasives and minor violence," Dr. Wrong points out. "If this were not so, humans could not live in the tropics, the arctic, on the desert and in the water. Fats and oils can be applied to the skin and will lubricate and soften, but are not absorbed. The skin can not be nourished or 'fed' by rubbing in a cream any more than a piece of leather can be 'fed' by oiling it. Vitamins added to skin creams are practically useless in their effect."

Our skin resists chemicals extremely well, according to Dr. Wrong, with the exception of such rare chemicals as mustard gas. It also resists remarkably well the invasion of most bacteria encountered. Pimples and boils are purely local skin infections, he declares.

It is dangerous to have too much sun, although "our skin offers fair protection against the ultra-violet rays of the sun. Tanning is an effort on the part of our skin to protect us further and, of course, the negro has the most protection of all against the sun's rays. Sun bathing, in moderation, is very healthful and undoubtedly increases our resistance to infection, and is a sure prevention of rickets. However, the vogue for sun-bathing is undoubtedly as harmful as moderate sun-bathing is healthful. Severe sunburn can make a person as ill as a heat burn, and sunstroke is not uncommon here."

"In Australia," Dr. Wrong states, "where sun bathing is almost a religion, the amount of skin cancer is greater than anywhere else in the world." He concludes: "Fair people must use discretion and moderation in their sun-bathing."

CHAPTER XXXI.

Ransome Todd's heart gave a great leap and continued beating jerkily as he watched the slender girl mount the steps to enter the airliner. I'd have known Tamar if she were wearing a mask instead of those dark glasses, he thought happily.

He stole a quick glance about the group assembled at the gate. No one accompanied Tamar to the entrance. There was a quick racing of the motor, the engine roared and the great silver ship was off down the runway. He caught a glimpse of a white face pressed against a window and the lift of a slender white hand. She had seen him then.

Ranny moved out of the dimming throng and went into the terminal building. He had come to check with the men in the control tower the number of transient ships, hoping to find some clue for the plane that had carried Tamar away. There had been a call from Taylor today, telling of a reservation that had been made and the ticket sent out by a private pilot to an inn.

The FBI man had been checking with the airfields on transients and reservations. He had played a hunch that the kidnapper was using his plane to make his contact with Knox Randolph for the ransom, and in all likelihood would see that Tamar returned by plane.

The records in the police files showed only three Louies of all those investigated who had private flying licenses. That narrowed the number down considerably. Of course, the man would be using an alias, though, and throw them off the track.

The reservation had been made for a Mrs. Arthur James. Nothing unusual about the name, and until Ranny saw Tamar he had thought it might be only a very thin thread of a pattern they were trying to weave together to make a complete design.

He stopped at the public telephone and put in a call for Shadwell. The first thing he must do was to let Tamar's father know that she was safely on board the plane bound for Atlanta.

The long-distance operator said the line was busy and he had to wait for a moment. He saw a girl in the next booth talking earnestly into the telephone. He guessed that she was sending a wire as he watched her read from a paper. She was small and pretty with blonde curls framing her oval face.

Even through the glass he could see that she seemed nervous. She hurried out of the door and across the lobby. Ranny's call was put through and he had Knox Randolph on the wire. "I have just seen Tamar enter an airliner for Atlanta," he said in a shaking voice.

"Yes," said Randolph. "Tamar told the hostess who she is and the radio operator called the local police. I just had the message. I'm meeting the plane at Atlanta. Dick is flying me up."

"I'll be on hand, too," Ranny shouted.

Two hours later the airliner with Tamar on board was set down on the ribbon of concrete at the Atlanta field. The gates were thronged with reporters and bystanders who gave a wild cheer as Tamar appeared in the doorway of the plane.

Police stood by, hands on holsters. Tamar was so weak with sheer nervous exhaustion that her feet crumpled and refused to move as she took the first step.

Strong arms gathered her up. "Tamar!" A vise-like grip pulled her to a rough tweed-clad chest and giant strides carried her past the curious.

Tamar laughed to keep from crying. It was heavenly to be with Dad and Ranny. And good old Dick Shadwell in the front seat with the driver.

"Where are we going?" she managed presently.

"I'm taking you to a hotel. You're going to get about 12 hours sleep before you go back home."

"Oh, but, Dad, please don't. I want to get back to Shadwell. I've never wanted to see home so badly in all my life as I have the last two days. Let's go home, Dad."

"Are you flying back with me, Ranny?" Dick asked, turning in the seat.

"It's not far to Tahlahneka by plane," Ranny looked at Tamar. He had held her briefly in his arms, and in that short moment knew that he would never be happy if he could not always have her.

News travels fast! Ranny thought as they pulled up before a small restaurant. He had decided that he had more work to do before he could go back to Tahlahneka. For one thing, he must go and telephone the office at Tahlahneka. Randolph had barely had time to say that a wire had come from Atlanta just as he left the house stating that Tamar was on the transport. The wire was being traced as he left. Perhaps Taylor would have some definite news about it.

Tamar drank hot coffee and ate a thin sandwich. "It's good, but I'm too excited to eat," she said. "May I call Phoebe and have her get dinner?"

In another moment she could hear the sound of Phoebe's warm voice ejaculating and sobbing with joy. Tamar could see her there in the wide old hall with its walnut paneling, her feet spread and head wagging in its bright red kerchief. Aristotle would be scratching his back on the open kitchen door and grinning with delight.

"We'll be home for dinner, Phoebe!"

"Ah, knowed it. Honey. Ah's so happy mah black hands is playing Hallelujah on de sides of my kettles. De whole house at a singin', Chille, we is waitin'!"

Tamar's blue eyes glistened with tears and the color had started back into her pale cheeks. Ranny had studied her closely all of the way into town. He must get them started before the reporters got to her. She was in no condition to talk about her experience just now.

He had chartered a private plane and flown down to Atlanta, getting there just before the airliner landed. He had counted on its stops giving him time to beat it in to the field. His pilot was still waiting, in case he wanted to go back to the first field.

A few minutes later they were all on their way again. Ranny called Taylor, who asked him to come on at once to Tahlahneka, flying down with Richard.

Tamar's dark head nodded on her father's shoulder as they left Atlanta. The driver of the rented car kept the speed down until they left the traffic. He began to open it up now and they were speeding toward Tahlahneka and Shadwell.

Tamar looked up once to find her father's eyes upon her, anxiety written on his face. She could see the marks of sleeplessness and the fine lines etched on his brow. The gray above his temples was spreading fast now, and these past few days had not done him any good.

"Dad, I'm so sorry that you worried about me."

"Let's not mention it for a while, Tamar. I'm so thankful to have you back safely."

"Did you pay ransom?"

Randolph smiled. "You won't be put off, I can see. I'd have given everything I owned or ever hope to own to keep one hair of your dear head unharmed. It was not that costly. In fact, the abductor was very lenient. I put a hundred thousand in bills of large denominations in a metal strong box and placed it in the hollow of the shaft at the saddle horses' graves. Tahlahneka, you know."

"Was it removed?" Tamar asked, her eyes wide. Some one who had known the estate of Shadwell had suggested that place! Who in the world would know that there was a hollow in the base of the tall white shaft? And, why, of all places, would any one risk coming to Shadwell for the ransom?

"Yes, the money was removed some time during the night or early morning. I went down to the cemetery the first thing this morning after daylight. It was gone. Tamar, some one knew that shaft was hollow."

"It couldn't have been Louie, Dad. Why, he was a stranger here, I know. He simply couldn't have known such a small detail as that."

Knox Randolph shook his head. "I hardly think, though, that he would trust any one else with the money. I drove into Atlanta yesterday to get it ready."

Tamar was silent. Louie could not have taken the money from Tahlahneka's shaft because at that time he was sound asleep in the cabin at the foot of the mountain where she was held captive. He had an accomplice. Now there were three mixed up in it. Therese, Louie and some one who knew Shadwell.

Taylor was waiting for them at Shadwell. Dick's plane had landed sooner, and Ranny and he had already talked with the investigator.

Tamar looked hungrily about the terraces and the open vista that stretched down toward the Chestnut. It was late afternoon and shadows of the great trees were already darkening the rolling land.

The confusion of waddling geese, clacking guineas and the sight of waiting police threw Tamar into a nervous tension once more. She wanted to get up to her room and close her door and lie on her big four-poster bed.

She wanted to see the movement of the sheer white curtains blowing in and out of the casements and watch the hands of her clock creep slowly about its funny old face—the clock that had watched the first Tamar Randolph in this same room for so many years.

She wanted to walk softly in that

All-Bran Pecan Muffins Substitute For Dessert

So good are these tender-textured, nut-filled bran muffins that they take the place of sugar-consuming desserts, when served piping hot with fresh sweet butter and preserves. Try them some night when you're having a light supper and need something hearty to serve as a "filler-upper." Here's the recipe:

All-Bran Pecan Muffins

2 tablespoons shortening	1 cup milk
1 cup sugar	1 cup flour
1 egg	1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup All-Bran	2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
	1/2 cup pecan meats

Cream shortening and sugar; add eggs and beat until creamy. Stir in All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add, with the nut meats, to first mixture, and stir until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full; bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 minutes.

Yield: Eight muffins, 3 inches in diameter or 12 muffins 2 1/2 inches in diameter.

room that had belonged to Maris Randolph, and which would indelibly carry that dear possessor till its walls crumbled.

Something gripped her as she took the turn at the first landing of the stairs. Her lips froze and her slender body grew taut. She and Christopher had once stood by the shaft of the famous race horse, the week he had spent here. She had thrust her hand in the hollow at the base and said: "Ranny and I used this for our mailbox years ago."

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

A well-travelled motor road climbs up the wall of a 200-foot canyon in the Canadian Rockies? In a series of hairpin turns, the famous Switchback of Yoho National Park reaches a greater height for its length than any other road in the Dominion. An Associated Screen "Did You Know That" movie short pictures the road.

CHARITY OF THOUGHT

The charities that soothe, and heal, and bless, lie scattered at the feet of men like flowers. —Wordsworth.

A little thought and a little kindness are often worth more than a great deal of money. —Ruskin.

Judge not without knowledge, nor without necessity, and never without charity. —Dr. Alex. Whyte.

Where the motive to do right exists, and the majority of one's acts are right, we should avoid referring to past mistakes. —Mary Baker Eddy.

Try to do to others as you would have them do to you, and do not be discouraged if they fail sometimes. —Dickens.

It will be found that he who is most charitable in his judgment is generally the least unjust. —Southey.

The undersea continental shelf that runs from Newfoundland to Florida slopes gradually to its edge and then drops off abruptly into 1,500 fathoms depth.

W.T.P.B. Notes For Farmers.

Questions in the minds of farmers
these days are answered by W. S.
Campbell, Regional Representative,
War Time Prices and Trade
Board:

Q Will the production of farm machinery be reduced?

A Yes - with a few exceptions,
such as milking machines, cream
separators and one or two others,
there will be decreased production,
although there will be an increase in the production of machinery parts.

Q Can a farmer move a tractor from a dealer's to his farm using marked gasoline?

A Yes, by obtaining a permit from the Provincial Fuel Controller.

Q Can he move a tractor from farm to farm using marked gasoline?

A Yes, a distance of ten miles is permitted.

Q Is there any danger of a shortage of milk cans?

A The production is set at 10 per cent over 1940 in any year and with the increase in production, milk cans will have to be used continuously.

Q Are exchanges of goods between farmers under the ceiling?

A No, but if sales are made to other than farmers then the ceiling prices apply.

Q What will be the supply and price of binder twine in this fall?

A Farmers will be able to buy binder twine at the same price as in 1941. The # one grade may not be available. If substitution is made, the same profit only per lb.
will be charged as in 1941. The price will range from 500 feet of twine at 3c per lb. to 650 feet at 1 1/2c per lb.

No Coupon, No Sugar!

Ration books are the housewife's sugar bank books, to be guarded as carefully. No coupons, no sugar!
This warning is issued by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, which has become a Board of distress appeal to a number of people who have already lost their sugar ration cards.

Burnside Notes

Mrs. Don McCulloch of Turner
Valley is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Cecil Cipperville and two small sons of Calgary are visiting relatives here.

Miss Marian Hopkins of Calgary has been spending the month with Mrs. Fred Thompson.

Mrs. Emily Richardson and Mrs.
Ruth Eckel left Monday to attend
the Farm Women's Week at Olds.

Mrs. Fred Thompson, Harold and Donald Thompson, and Reg Jamieson spent the weekend in Calgary and Kananaskis.

Notes From the West

Mrs. Campbell and Murdie were Calgary visitors last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Cowitz visited with the latter's parents on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. W. Blain.

The Elkton Milling Workers met last Thursday at the home of Mrs. L.
Barnard. A comforter was quilted and sewing given out. It was decided to hold a weiner roast and have a fish pond at the south ford on Aug.
14th at 7 p.m. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs.
Unger on Wednesday, August 12th.

RAIN

It is a wonderful thing to see the prairie provinces green from the foothills to Winnipeg. Of course, we shall have trouble, but they will be easier to bear than those which result from wide-spread drought.

If we get fair rains this month and if frost does no extensive damage, a large wheat crop is assured. Harvest labour and storage space will be problems we shall have to meet somehow.

We rarely offer advice to farmers, but will risk doing so now. Drought will come again just as surely as the sun will rise tomorrow morning.
What a year this is to set aside
some feed reserve - wild hay, tame hay and feed grains. True, there will be mighty little money space available for feed grain, but what about stacking? Surely every farmer producing livestock should have a good row of beef cattle and hogs, ready this fall.

Stacking is more of a lost art, but it should be recovered. Only through skill and experience can a uniform row of attractive, symmetrical stacks be built. However, to preserve the sheaves, the most important consideration is keeping the stack high in the middle while building. If, after settling, the sheaves become horizontal or slightly down at the head ends, rain will work in and the grain may be ruined. So, while building, the middle must be kept high and then, after settling, all sheaves will slope slightly down towards the butts and the grain should remain in good shape for years.

Don't stack wet or damp sheaves.

Wheat Pools Reduce Street "Spread"

The western Wheat Pool decided at an inter-provincial conference, held in Calgary on July 16th and 17th, to reduce by  $\frac{1}{2}$ c a bushel the spread in the handling of "street" wheat delivered to the Wheat Board through Pool elevators for the ensuing crop year. This means that the "street" spread in Board wheat handled by the Pool will be eliminated and farmers who deliver on that basis will receive the carlot price and benefit by  $\frac{1}{2}$ c a bushel as compared with last year's charges. The Wheat Board has been advised accordingly.

This decision was reached because of special conditions which are certain to prevail in the marketing of the 1942 wheat crop. The present arrangements with the Wheat Board provide that a producer must deliver 750 bushels in order to qualify for carlot price. However it is probable that the first quota will be five bushels to the acre and many farmers will not have sufficient allotment to deliver 750 bushel, even although they may have substantial quantities of wheat in farm storage.

The Wheat Pools have taken the leadership in this matter just as they have in virtually every proposal to aid western agriculture.

The Siege Of Sevastopol

THROUGH THE PAGES of history are scattered the names of men who have lived, and battles which were fought many years ago, and which are as familiar to us as events of the present day. Waterloo, Trafalgar, Lord Nelson, Earl Haig, are all names that call up events well known to Britishers everywhere. Already in this war, we know that when it is recorded for history, there will be men and battles whose names will take places alongside of those immortalized in past generations. Dunkirk, Crete, Captain Fogarty Fegan of the Jarvis Bay, Malta, and now Sevastopol, will all live on the pages of history as epic events in this great struggle for freedom. The siege of Sevastopol, which started last October and ended late in June, is one of the greatest struggles ever recorded in modern warfare. Because it forms the gateway to the rich Caucasian oil fields, one of the prizes Hitler most urgently desires, and because it also served as a base for the Russian Black Sea fleet, no effort was spared by the Nazis to bring the fortress under their control.

An Epic Struggle

It is said that at no time in history have so many, or such powerful weapons been assembled as were used against Sevastopol. General Von Mannstein sent 250,000 men against the city, and fresh troops were available to replace those that fell, without ceasing, and the onslaught lasted for two hundred and forty-five days of continuous action. The distance which the Nazis advanced in that time was only forty miles and it is likely that never before were so many lives lost in the covering of such a distance. In spite of the fact that the Germans had control of the air, and that they outnumbered the Russians at a ratio of ten to one, they were repeatedly driven back, and it was only through a total disregard for life and material that the post was finally overcome. Even after the defenses had been stormed, the garrison did not surrender, but continued to fight each step of the German advance. The loss of Sevastopol is a grave event, for it opens the way for Hitler to the oil fields of the Caucasus, and gives him valuable air bases from which to launch his attack in that direction. It also deprives the Russians of an important base for their fleet in the Black Sea.

Valiant Defense

However, the valiant defense of the port has given the United Nations time to prepare for the defense of the Caucasus, a defense which could not have been effectively organized had the Germans not been delayed so long at Sevastopol. The valiant part which Russia is playing in the war is well recognized by all the United Nations. Although specific details are not made public, it is known that large quantities of essential weapons and supplies are constantly being sent to Russia from Britain and the United States, and that all possible aid is being given to sustain them. At the same time the free nations acclaim the courage and determination of the defenders of Sevastopol, whose names will go down in the history of Russia and of the world.

HOME SWEET HOME

Visitors to French Canada are always impressed with the galle habit of vivacity at table. Mealtimes should be happy times when the family sits down in amiable sociability. Eupetite is the word for it, and worth trip to the dictionary. At mealtimes, don't worry about unpaid bills, scold the children, or gnaw on bones of contention. All the vitamins in the world won't help you or your children if the occasion is so unhappy as to impair digestion. Warm up that gloomy, cold-potato atmosphere.

Other Don'ts

Don't spoil mealtime by forcing children to eat. If a child is seriously underweight there is likely enough an organic cause and it is wiser to consult your physician. Perhaps he's too excited with life to feel like settling down to a meal; after all, life is pretty exciting to youngsters whose genial currents have not been frozen by the anfractuities of life! Or the child may be a bit upset or too tired. Let him alone; scolding or nagging won't help and may make him so resentful that he may go on a partial hunger strike.

Spiking the Appetite

Appetites are sure to decline if you serve the same dishes over and over again. It's too easy to fall into the habit of always serving the identical combination of dishes—such as cole slaw with stew or pan potatoes with a roast. For a change accompany a stew with a green salad with a favourite dressing. Or with a roast, au gratin potatoes or baked onions that have been glazed with a little honey to give them eye appeal.

Conditioned reflexes make our mouths water when we smell the robust aroma of sausage in the skillet, while the word protein leaves us cold. The advice to eat one leafy green vegetable and one citrus food every day doesn't rouse our appetite like it would if we put it this way: Think of the leafy green vegetable as tender, fresh broccoli sprinkled with grated cheese. Sounds better, doesn't it? And for citrus fruit imagine a salad of orange and grapefruit sections with some of our local fruits in season, served with a dash of a tart French dressing. Think of sauces* and dressings in due proportion to the bulkier parts of a meal, remembering what George Meredith had his bright young hero say:—

"The woman who has mastered sauces is sitting on the very apex of civilization."

If you have not already done so, the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, invites you to write for a free vitamin chart which may be hung in the kitchen as an aid to navigation on the course of health.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

This was due to be a column about Army Week. That's what it will be—but the lead will be a little different, thanks to the news that just came over the radio, "Vancouver Island has been shelled by a submarine!"

It brought back to my mind the last time I changed a column after it was nearly finished—that was when two freighters were sunk in the St. Lawrence.

At that time I was solemnly informed on several occasions and by several persons that "there haven't been any sinkings in the St. Lawrence—that's just government propaganda to frighten people into voting yes!" And I wasn't the only one to whom that story was told. Just the other day—a friend related this anecdote.

"A group sitting around in an office in Montreal the day after the St. Lawrence sinkings was gradually shouted into silence by a vociferous proponent of the theory that the story had been invented by government propagandists.

"The telephone rang and was answered by the occupant of the office. All the group could hear was: "Did he? Is he all right now? How far did he have to swim? What's he going to do now? Well, he certainly has nerve, wanting to go back for more!"

"He hung up, turned to the group and said the call was from his wife who had just heard from her cousin who was a seaman on one of the torpedoed vessels and had just arrived in Montreal.

"The vociferous one, converted, grabbed the phone and passed on the story of the truth of the sinkings to several friends.

"As the meeting broke up and the converted sceptic left, the man who had answered the telephone said: "That phone call was a long distance operator telling me she couldn't complete a call. My wife has no cousin at sea—in fact all her cousins are girls. I carried on that fake conversation after she cut off just to prove my theory that a rumour-monger would rather believe a lie than a fact!"

There's a moral in its somewhere! And there's a moral in the shelling of the telegraph station at Estevan, B.C.

But this was to be about Army Week. So it is. We wouldn't need to hold Army Weeks if people would believe that "it can happen here." We wouldn't have to put on campaigns to get men to enlist in the Reserve Army if there was less complacency. We wouldn't have to ration commodities like gasoline, if we civilians were prepared to volunteer mentally to fight for our country in our every day lives.

Look at the automobiles that clutter the roads on Sundays. Look at the "teas" and "strawberry festivals" that are advertised in the press and the pulpit.

Don't these people know that we are fighting for existence?

Are we going to have "teas" and selfish men and women who must continue doing what they used to until road blocks, built to hamper an invader, hamper their progress to garden parties and golf links?

It might seem a very black outlook if it were not for the fact that just before Army Week started we had "Sugar Ration Week" and Canada showed that not every one is of the gasoline-wasting or "must-have-tea-at-any-cost" stripe.

Volunteers of all ages rallied to help cut down their own supply of sugar. Men of ARP, C.P.C. and Reserve Army units tramped the street collecting cards; club women and housewives went back to school and sat at cramped desks to transcribe names from application forms to ration cards; business girls became office managers to speed the work along and Boy Scouts gave up their holidays to act as messengers.

I was in Ottawa during ration week. And I started off on the wrong foot by going to bed angry.

The reason?

Two well set up looking men who arrived by the Sunday night train from Montreal went up in the elevator with me. The heaviest items of baggage carried by the bell-boys were golf-bags filled with clubs. Figuratively chewing my nails I tried to sleep wondering whether they were in the capital to help win the war or to knock valuable rubber around a golf course.

I still don't know. But this column is about Army Week or, since John and Jane Citizen both put their backs into the Sugar Ration job, shall we say both Army Weeks?

We have set up—and now that we see how it works—have welcomed the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. We set it up to help us conserve goods of all kinds and foods to help win the war. That is to say we are denying ourselves to help the Army, the Navy and the Air Force.

Well then, what is the good of holding Army Week once a year if we chisel from the Army the other 51 weeks?

"Chisel?" Yes, I know it sounds nasty! But that's what it is. "A white lie to get a little more sugar is a very little thing."

Sure!

And stealing one cartridge from a soldier's pouch is a small thing—except when that cartridge spells the difference between life and death to a man in the same uniform as your son.

NOTHING FOR FEES

An East London man who had been advised by his solicitor upon the matter of making everything over to his wife in case he was killed in an air raid, later wrote to his legal adviser thus:

"Dear Sir: Having as you advised, put all my possessions in my wife's name, regret to say I now have no money to pay you for your services."

There is a fortune awaiting the man who can invent a shoe string that won't break when you are in a hurry. 2473

New Tank Developed By Russia Is Described By Experts To Be Shell Proof And Also Fire Proof

The Russians have a big tank thoroughly battle-tested, which is described by experts as the world's safest. A shell from a 75 mm. gun cannot pierce the armor of the "KV", but the chief reason it is so extraordinarily safe is because it is virtually fireproof—far more so than any American or British tank which has yet seen action in the war.

These lumbering ambulating fortresses of more than 40 tons contain highly intricate machinery and guns, and take a long time to build.

Their resistance to flames, therefore, does two things. It assures the tanks of much longer life in action than most tanks now have and it saves thousands of lives of tank crewmen—fighting technicians who require months of experience before they become first class at their jobs, and who cannot easily be replaced.

According to reports by observers, fire losses among both British and American tanks in Libya were high. The reduction of this fire hazard appears to be a problem which must still be concentrated upon by American and British engineers. Russia's KV tank thus should set a valuable precedent for Allied tank builders.

The KV is named after Klement Voroshilov, former war commissar and a member of the defence committee. American correspondents saw one of the KV's closeup recently for the first time. It weighs well over 40 tons, has very large dimensions and remarkably heavy armor. Even 88 mm. anti-aircraft shells have rarely been able to pierce its thick hide. A Soviet tank specialist told us:

"There is almost no fire hazard in the KV. In American tanks the fire risk is great because their gasoline engines and gas tanks make them vulnerable. In fact neither the British nor American tanks which we have seen are sufficiently equipped against inflammable liquids.

"The KV is made so that inflammable liquids, even when thrown in bottles against the sides at close range, cannot get inside except from one or two very small apertures."

The KV tank also derives a great fireproof advantage from being Diesel-engined. The best Soviet medium tank likewise has Diesels.

A tank corps general said the KV "is impregnable in defence" as well as powerful on the offensive. The medium, which is nearer the size of the American Gen. Grant, has greater manoeuvrability than the KV, is very powerful and is described as proportionately better. America's biggest tank, the Gen. Sherman, is not sufficiently known here to make comparisons with the KV.

From battle experience it appears clear that fire resistance will have to be developed to the utmost by Allied tank designers both to save the lives of tankmen and to get the maximum battle careers out of new model tanks.

Had Their Hands Read

Palmist Did Not Find Anything Very Interesting In Hitler's

A woman of some prominence in Germany and an expert palmist often had asked Hitler to let her read his palm. He finally agreed, but in order to make it more sporting stipulated that another person should stand with him behind a curtain and she should read both their palms without knowing in advance which was which. This was a few months before the beginning of the war.

Two right hands were thrust through the curtain one of which she read quickly and without much interest. The other she examined long and exhaustively, found much interest and good in it and finally pronounced that the owner some day would do something to get the world's tongues wagging. The curtains parted and the owner of the hand appeared. It was Rudolf Hess.

Famous colored diamonds include the Hope diamond, which is a deep blue; the Tiffany diamond, a clear canary yellow, and the Dresden, a green diamond.

Has Patriotic Place

Newspaper Advertising Is Financial Basis Of A Free Press

President Roosevelt's statement, cited by the New York Times, that advertising has a "worthwhile and patriotic place in the nation's total war effort" is just one more example of the clear vision and enlightened leadership which have given the President his fame.

The Times itself makes the extremely important point that newspaper advertising is the financial basis of a free press. It enables the newspaper to go into the hands of the reader at a price that would otherwise be impossible, and a free press has a vital wartime role to play in a democracy. The newspaper "although it has, of course, no war contracts" is nevertheless "in effect an essential wartime industry."

What would happen if, through arbitrary and unreasonable restrictions upon advertising, the newspaper were crippled, if not destroyed? The Times answers that it would be the first step in the suppression of the free press. It would also prevent further co-operation with the war efforts—conservation, salvage, rationing, price-control, etc.—and it would prevent industries from protecting during the war years the great investments in goodwill that they have made through advertising in the past. —Montreal Gazette.

Chequers, A Place Of Rest And Recreation For Britain's Prime Ministers, Has Storied History

Operates Link Trainer

Only Woman To Hold This Job Works At Cheyenne

Dorothy Mackay of Buffalo is the only woman airline Link trainer operator in the world. Blonde, attractive, and a specialist, she's flown airplanes for five years, holds a commercial pilot's license, and is now assigned to the pilot training centre of United Air Lines at Cheyenne. When a student pilot meets Miss Mackay her first words are to find a certain airport area, after filling in the radio beam courses. He does so, hands the chart back to her and climbs into the Link trainer. The cockpit of this miniature plane has the same flight instruments and type of controls as a regular airplane. The student clamps on earphones and pulls down the hood which completely covers the trainer's cockpit so that all he can see are the instruments before him, while Miss Mackay seats herself at a nearby table. She places the chart under a triangular device on wheels, which moves over the face of the chart as the pilot "flies" and a pen attached to this device traces the course he follows. The student pilot "takes off" and "climbs" to a predetermined altitude. Miss Mackay then manipulates the dials of a radio set to give the pilot the type of volume of radio directional beam signals, appropriate to his position. The 29-year-old Link instructor did secretarial work until aviation attracted her. She's a member of the Ninety-Nines, women's flying organization, and the National Aeronautics Association.

A nickel isn't as good as a dime, but it goes to church more often.

Chequers, "place of rest and recreation" of Britain's prime ministers, would tell many interesting stories if its historic walls could talk.

It was at this country home, away from the din and bustle of No. 10 Downing Street, that the British and French Prime Ministers in 1917 agreed on unity of command on the eastern front; here, seven years later, Ramsay MacDonald met Edouard Herriot, the French premier.

Here too, Stanley Baldwin spent long evenings playing patience and Mrs. Baldwin seized the antique fire-irons of the great hall and brandished them to illustrate some point of cricket. And here Winston Churchill and Vyacheslav Molotov first discussed the Anglo-Soviet 20-year alliance.

One of Chequers stories concerns a week-end when Viscount Halifax, then Edward Wood, was invited there so Baldwin could tell him he had been chosen to go to India as Viceroy. Friday and Saturday passed and India was not mentioned.

On Sunday, Baldwin and Lord Halifax went for a long walk together. That evening, an embarrassed Baldwin admitted to his private secretary, Sir Ronald Waterhouse, that he hadn't told Lord Halifax about India. "You tell him," he added, and Sir Ronald had to do the job.

The "no confidence" debate which brought Prime Minister Churchill such an overwhelming majority just won't pass into history. Almost every day someone pops up with another fact about, or refers to it in a speech.

For instance it has been discovered there was a mistake in the official division list and that Mr. Churchill received 476 votes instead of 475 as originally announced. The opposition count remains 25. Also, though many critics blamed Mr. Churchill for the army's setback, not a single M.P. serving with the forces voted against the government.

A surprise visitor to the air ministry on the eve of the debate was Wing Cmdr. Charles Bray. He made a 23-hour flight from Libya as Air Marshal Tedder's special representative to ensure that all facts regarding the R.A.F. were put in the proper light. A former Essex cricketer, Bray has been one of the chief public relations officers in North Africa for the last year.

To Conserve Leather

Shoes Can Now Be Manufactured Only In Seven Colors

Styles, colors, and finishes of leather footwear, from infants' soft sole shoes to men's work boots, are regulated in an order issued by Louis Daoust, footwear administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Prescribing no major change in the styles or class of footwear now being worn by Canadians, the new simplification regulations, by eliminating "frills" will result in substantial savings of both leather and metal, the board predicted.

Under the order, women's shoes will be restrained to seven colors—town brown, golden tobacco, turf tan, blue tan, blue jacket, kenna red, black and white; men's dress footwear to five colors, and men's work boots to two. Leather slippers will be manufactured in only six shades and babies' soft sole in four.

Steel is conserved by restricting use of steel shanks to essential arch support and safety shoes. Imitation rivets are banned, rivets being permitted only on loggers' miners' and safety boots. Metal hooks, buckles, or other metal trimming are prohibited.

PLASTIC FROM COFFEE

Between 1930 and 1940, says Collier's, Brazil produced so much coffee that it spent about $10,000,000 to destroy some 70,000,000 sacks worth approximately $225,000,000. Every method used—burial in the ground, dumping at sea and burning with imported kerosene, proved to be so costly that it had to be abandoned. Today much of this surplus stock is being made into a plastic.
